The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: the prior art taken as a whole neither teaches nor renders obvious the structure and functions of the claims including for example the combinations of a component of a crank mechanism having a nitriding layer formed by a carbonitriding process and a hydrogen content of no more than 0.5ppm, an austenite grain size number exceeding 10 and a fracture stress value of no less than 2650 Mpa. As noted by Applicant in the remarks, claims 1-3 are not limited solely to a component of a crank mechanism, but of the component incorporated in the crank mechanism, that is it is the combination of the crank mechanism which is claimed, along with the specific component and its defined properties. Further, as noted by Applicant, none of the primary references disclose a crank mechanism. With respect to Murakami and Takemura, neither of these references discloses a crank mechanism, nor do they provide a specific teaching that such a modification can be specifically used in a crank mechanism. In response to the assertion of inherency of the specific fracture stress value, Applicant notes the dissimilarities of the materials so as to properly rebut the inherency set forth in the rejection. Regarding the combination rejection with Fujiwara, Applicant notes that such a combination with either Murakami or Takemura would not result in the combination now claimed with the nitriding layer. There is no suggestion in the Takemura or Murakami that an additional carbonitriding layer would be an obvious modification, such a modification would further not have been obvious with a combination in a crank mechanism.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
